

1, English teach Nick Jackson hands Thao Larson the Jayne Hentges Humanitarian award. 2. Rylin Kleese claps for a classmate he lines up. 3. Nyakota Ding plays the violin during the ceremony. 4. Kevin Li and Riley Minard smile as they exit the ceremony. 5. Breazi Preston holds her diploma with great pride. 6. Alicia Colin shakes hands after receiving her diploma.

Excerpt from Josephine Bahati's Speech

Excerpt from Elizabeth Mora Huber's Speech

Thank you, it is my privilege to say a few words to you today about my life and the path that got me to this day. Life as we know it is not the same for everyone. Everyone in the Knapp unique story to tell. For my part, I want to focus on successes and failures. Yes, one thing that we all have in common in our lives is failure. Seems like a weird thing to talk about on such a happy day; failures are what makes us feel sad, useless, and worst of all, failure makes us want to give up. One thing that my life is a testimony to, however, is that we must never give up, no matter how huge any single failure seems.

We all know diversity is one of Hoover's greatest strengths. we represent 45 countries and speak 41 languages. All of us have different experiences, cultures and outlooks that make us who we are. While we have these differences, there is one common trait among all of us. We've all come from dreams and we all have our own. Our class motto is 'The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams'. While you may be thinking it is cheesy or corny or whatever your vocabulary may call it, it still applies to you.

DM Schools Flickr photos

Graduation 2018

Congratulations, Class of 2018

7. The senior class, along with family and staff, set two memorial chairs for Jose Rodriguez and Chai Htun who passed away.
8. Journee Perry waves to crowd.
9. The senior class cheers as they are officially announced as graduates.