*New building,
Same old love*
Bryce Schmidt

Tensions were building between sophomore Bryce Schmidt and junior Jade Kelso as they sat in a little room bickering among themselves. The saying "Arguing like an old married couple," couldn't be more true for the couple who celebrated their eight-month anniversary in September. Although they were held back by strict families and busy schedules, the two of them managed to see each other on a regular basis.

"We've recently been spending a lot of time together, over the summer we would see each other about three to four times a week," Kelso said. "My parents have been a lot more lenient lately about who comes in the house and how late they stay." The couple navigated around Kelso's work schedule at the Johnston Subway to find ways to spend more time together. The pair of them would on average, spend three to eight hours a day together.

When together the couple enjoyed watching TV. "Right now we are binge watching "American Horror Story", so literally he just comes over and we sit in my basement and watch "American Horror story";" Kelso said. Together, they also watched season four of "Freak Show."

At home was not the only time they had to spend together. At the time they started dating Schmidt was a freshman and unable to drive so Kelso supplied him with transportation to school. This tradition stayed with the couple. Schmidt walked to Kelso's house every morning so she could drive him to school. "I'm his transportation," Kelso said.

Kelso not only supplied him with transportation to school but also took Schmidt to get food.

"You don't feed me," Schmidt said.

"You bet I don't," Kelso replied. "We go to McDonalds all the time and get 20 a piece."

"I'm not fat," Schmidt replied.

Though Kelso drove Schmidt places, Schmidt had a deep-rooted hatred for Kelso's car. "This man makes fun of my Ford because it's a freestyle," Kelso said.

"It was found on the road dead," Schmidt said. "Your battery died, so you know."

"It drives you everywhere and you're gonna sit there and make fun of it", Kelso said, "he said his car's better; he doesn't have a car!"

The couple also spent time together during school hours. Kelso and Schmidt held hands while walking each other to class but never would it go beyond that. "I hate PDA at school," Kelso said. "I've read the school regulation rules, so we always make the joke that anytime we are holding hands or anything it's a 'Saturday detention.'"

Young love doesn't usually last but the unconditional love that they showed each other was an unbreakable bond. To have someone to lean on during the stress of high school is a gift that unfortunately not many people have.
